What is this

In 2006, NASA had about for its research projects that were organized arou many missions, some of which would not be echnical developme that in turn depended space station research projects. Then, working to-gether with the mostly uni-versity principal investiga-tors, we created a group of 35 project descriptions that would serve as a model for uncderstanding what prog-ress was beingmade and what remained to be done. These projects were then grouped into the display at the right showing project name, requirements to be met, the ten NASA goals they were to meet..

How do I get up-dates & revisions? Robert E. Horn Senior Researcher Stanford University CEO, MacroVU.com hornbob@earthlink.net

National Aeronautics and Space Administration 2003 Strategic Plan